The Emily Program Named Best Midsize Company on 2011 Top Workplace List

St. Paul, MN June 20, 2011—The Emily Program has been named one of the Top 100 Workplaces in Minnesota based on an employee-based survey project from the Star Tribune. The Star Tribune Top Workplaces special section was published in the Star Tribune on Sunday, June 19. The report can also be found at StarTribune.com/topworkplaces2011.

Produced by the same team that compiles the 20-year-old Star Tribune 100 report of the best-performing public companies in Minnesota, Top Workplaces recognizes the most progressive companies in Minnesota based on employee opinions about company leadership, communication, career opportunities, workplace environment, managerial skills, pay and benefits. The analysis included responses from over 60,500 employees at Minnesota public, private and nonprofit organizations.

The rankings in the Star Tribune Top 100 Workplaces are based on survey information collected by WorkplaceDynamics, an independent company specializing in employee engagement and retention.

The Emily Program was ranked number one on the midsize company list.

Executive Director Dirk Miller, Ph.D, L.P., said, "Our program is built by the amazing community of dedicated professionals working here. Each one of us is passionate about serving clients and helping them to recover. We are proud that this is such a supportive, open and creative place to work. We love being part of The Emily Program's caring and healing."

Star Tribune Publisher Michael J. Klingensmith said, "The companies in the Star Tribune Top 100 Workplaces deserve high praise for creating the very best work environments in the state of Minnesota. My congratulations to each of these exceptional companies."

The Emily Program provides exceptional, individualized care leading to recovery from eating disorders and related problems. It serves clients from offices in St. Paul, St. Louis Park, Duluth, Burnsville, Stillwater and Seattle, Washington.

To qualify for the Star Tribune Top Workplaces, a company must have more than 50 employees in Minnesota. Over 1,200 companies were invited to participate. Rankings were composite scores calculated purely on the basis of employee responses.
