The Emily Program Named a 2012 Top Workplace

St. Paul, MN June 18, 2012—The Emily Program has been named one of the Top 100 Workplaces in Minnesota based on an employee-based survey project from the Star Tribune. The Star Tribune Top Workplaces special section was published in the Star Tribune on Sunday, June 17. The report can also be found at startribune.com/jobs/topworkplaces.

Produced by the same team that compiles the 21-year-old Star Tribune 100 report of the best-performing public companies in Minnesota, Top Workplaces recognizes the most progressive companies in Minnesota based on employee opinions about company leadership, communication, career opportunities, workplace environment, managerial skills, pay and benefits. The analysis included responses from nearly 71,200 employees at Minnesota public, private and nonprofit organizations.

The rankings in the Star Tribune Top 100 Workplaces are based on survey information collected by WorkplaceDynamics, an independent company specializing in employee engagement and retention.

The Emily Program was ranked 22 on the midsize company list.

Executive Director Dirk Miller, Ph.D, L.P., said, "Our program is built by the amazing community of dedicated professionals working here. Each one of us is passionate about serving clients and helping them to recover. We are proud that this is such a supportive, open and creative place to work. We love being part of The Emily Program's caring and healing."

Star Tribune Publisher Michael J. Klingensmith said, "The companies in the Star Tribune Top 100 Workplaces deserve high praise for creating the very best work environments in the state of Minnesota. My congratulations to each of these exceptional companies."

The Emily Program provides exceptional, individualized care leading to recovery from eating disorders and related problems. It serves clients from offices in Burnsville, Duluth, St. Louis Park, St. Paul, Stillwater and Seattle, Washington.
